“With the release of a new point-and-click mystery thriller every month, Face Noir is leading the indie adventure game movement.” “[Face Noir] is both an entertaining and satisfying experience.” “I love the characters and the story, and I love the interactive story.” “It’s about killing time, but to do so in a world that works. And that has been a rare feat.” “You become immersed into the story; it’s a game you want to spend more time with.” The artist and the scriptwriter made this game together. About This Game: Face Noir is a mystery adventure game released every month on Steam. Due to restrictions of Steam, only English is available. “The best noir adventure game in years, and the funniest too.” “A simple story and beautifully illustrated, but the game’s one major problem is that it can take a few hours to go through.” “I love the characters and the story, and I love the interactive story.” “It’s about killing time, but to do so in a world that works. And that has been a rare feat.” “You become immersed into the story; it’s a game you want to spend more time with.” About This Game: Face Noir is a mystery adventure game released every month on Steam. Due to restrictions of Steam, only English is available. After a successful Kickstarter campaign, Face Noir is now available on Steam. In Face Noir, you play as a private detective, Vincent, who is haunted by the events of his past. After someone killed his wife and daughter, Vincent did not report this crime. This decision haunted him, as he found himself looking for a missing person... Face Noir is a mystery adventure game. You will have to research, find information and solve puzzles. As you progress in the story, you will be able to discover the truth behind what really happened to your family, and you will be able to solve various mysteries. Playable at a fixed time, Face Noir is short and mainly silent. You will have to use your brain as you solve puzzles to reveal each mystery. Face Noir is a mystery adventure game

v1.2.2 Hakase Gaisen no Ryōfu Saturn by Satou Kazuya The original idea of the game was to make an extreme ryōfubu game (or a sort of shin ramen) for Saturn systems. About a year ago when I was bored and had some time, I decided to think about how to make the game using the latest compiler (4.09) from Sega. So I asked myself “Why don’t we make a game by simulating the evolution of a group of animals?”. And thus “Simulator: the Evolution of Animals” was born. ■ Simulator’s basic idea In a world made up of 10 kinds of animals (“Godzilla”, “Liger”, “Shrine”, “Nyanta”, “Chameleon”, “Oyster”, “Tiger”, “Snake”, “Turtle”, “Whale”, “Aquiloid”) and all of them are descendants of “Jaws”, there is a monk named “Adiba” who is God’s last hope to the extinction of all beings. However, only 7 gods exist: one is called “Tengusu” (God of the Giants) and another one is called “Gyusu” (God of the Humans), and up till here, we are all remaining calm. Nevertheless, in the state of “Low Power” (the status to use low strength to use the GOD-GOD-GOD-GOD-GOD power), a black nanoG-pod named “Simulator” appears in the monk’s sleeping bag and it gradually increases its power. It attempts to become the most powerful being to save the waning species of the animals. At the same time, the “Simulator” evolves as it consumes the different kinds of food. In this process, the player (or the girl) watches the story of “Adiba” and the “Simulator”. If the Simulator has enough power, players will encounter various strange creatures who will help them with their “opportunities”. If none of them, “Adiba
