Aurora is a distinctive cruiser, with a strong-shouldered silhouette, an imposing bridge tower and an armament of fourteen 152 mm guns. A strong teamwork player, she has a clear flavor of her Soviet roots, along with the World of Warships tradition of a more active Command and Control. A well-balanced cruiser who often makes the difference in a team game or a solo game, she has a strong need for a lot of work. Her reward for her work on the Sea lanes is her excellent artillery power with a relatively limited tonnage. Aurora is a loyal friend in the World of Warships game. In a team game, she's often a good partner, and she can bring a lot to the World of Warships' Points system. Aurora is known to have good radar and surface-detection devices. Her bridge-school gives her better in combat in firing her guns or handling a zigzag maneuver. Aurora is a powerful supporter, bringing a lot to the World of Warships Points system. Her shell damage is high, but a lot of the damage she receives comes from the shell damage on the allied team. In a team game, Aurora works best with enemies that have a low pen and a good Screening. Aurora works best alone in combat and on the higher difficulty levels. In the World of Warships game, she brings a lot to the Points system. An anti-aircraft destroyer is a good partner for Aurora. Aurora is an active team player, powerful and loyal. She can be used for challenging missions, as she is good at reloading the tank batteries or the main battery. This pack contains the Senior Man-of-War "Aurora" and a free slot. It contains the following weapons: •84 mm/50 caliber SA-N-2 "Amber" anti-ship/anti-aircraft gun •152 mm/45 caliber main guns •143 mm/45 caliber ZU-23-2 "Shilka" anti-ship/anti-land-air missile •The ship also has a smoke generator. About The Game World of Warships — Commanders and their Upgrades: The Commanders are the most crucial aspect of the World of Warships' game mechanics. Commanders can be purchased and upgraded using World of Warships

Awesome graphics. Special effects and emotes!

Physics Engine. Easy to fly drones are dependent from the ground created. The FULL MOON-Drones will be able to interact with the physics object.

Key Features:

- Drones: All the levels are set in a futuristic city where flying machines are the rule. The controls are made only through touch and combo gameplay: touch to launch your T-Drones and release to fire missiles. With the Vector Drone you can't accidentally or visually launch your missiles, so you must do them one by one; first you will have to release one and then touch to contact another one to finally fire. Holding down the touch will allow you to double-tap your drones. Maybe you have seen Mario Bros., make them look like that as soon as you make contact with another drone then you make a

Cable Guardian Pro introduces a set of new features and enhancements to the cable guardian to dramatically increase its usefulness. Developed by the author of Cable Guardian, C.A. Anderson, Cable Guardian Pro serves the following key functions: - Visual indicator position alerts, - Floor marker color/symbol alerts, - On-demand status display, - Field of view (FOV) measuring tool, - Automatic profile loading based on the game you start, - "Cable Drop" detection with the ability to stop the cable drop, - Hideable windows. Up to 4 visual indicators and floor markers can be displayed to indicate position. Positioning is relative to center and position is adjusted at runtime. Active indicators can be selected to be activated/deactivated. The status screen displays information such as current room name, currently running game, and duration/progress of the mission. There is also an on-demand status display that can be toggled on-demand at runtime. The on-demand status can be toggled on or off via a hotkey. The FOV tool allows for extremely accurate Z-and X-axis measurements. The profile editor allows the creation of profiles with a preset range of settings (FPS, Volume, etc). "Cable Drop" detection allows the user to shut off the cable drop and immediately stop the data flow. Some games may use the cable drop feature to trigger a score. There is also a standard version that offers all the standard features of the pro version. The standard version uses fewer resources. This is only available if you purchase Cable Guardian Pro after the evaluation period ends. If you buy the pro version, you will also get the standard version at no extra cost. Provisioning The free (non-pro) version of Cable Guardian Pro comes with the following features: - Visual indicator positions with no functionality, - Floor markers with no functionality, - On-demand status display, - Field of view (FOV) measuring tool, - Automatic profile loading based on the game you start. The paid version of Cable Guardian Pro has the following additional features: - Editable visual indicators, - Editable floor markers with position and orientation alerts, - On-demand status display, - Field of view (FOV) measuring tool, - Hideable windows, - Automatic profile loading based on the game you start, - "Cable
