A 31-year-old male patient complained of hypoglycemia without any ketosis and was admitted to our hospital. He had taken this illness for the last 10 years. On the admission, the fasting serum insulin level was 3.34 microU/ml, and the plasma glucose level was 30.9 mg/dl. The serum insulin level on the simultaneous liver biopsy showed 97 microU/ml, and that on pancreas biopsy was 7.69 microU/ml. These results suggested that his was a patient with multiple insulinomas. Since a large mass lesion was found in the pancreas, the insulinoma was resected through pancreatoduodenectomy. After the operation, the serum insulin level increased to 28.1 microU/ml on the 19th postoperative day. Serum glucose level (239 mg/dl) was lower than the normal range. Serum insulin level on simultaneous liver biopsy was 167 microU/ml, and that on biopsy of the removed mass was 173 microU/ml. These results suggested the existence of hepatic insulin secretion.Q: Why is `network.create_uuid(False)` not similar to `network.create_uuid(True)`? From the documentation, it looks like `network.create_uuid(True)` returns `uuid.UUID.tuple()`, while `network.create_uuid(False)` returns `type(_uuid=uuid.UUID, _format=format)`. Why is the output different? What do `network.create_uuid(True)` and `network.create_uuid(False)` have in common that can be handled via the `type(_uuid=uuid.UUID, _format=format)` tuple? A: The difference is that `True` and `False` are `Bool`, but not
