it is my hope that this list of organizations will inspire you to explore your own possibilities and consider them when looking for an ophthalmology fellowship or residency program that you are interested in. although most of the courses found on ophthacademy.com can be found elsewhere, there are some quality items that are not readily available in other places. for instance, the videos in the retina, ocular surface, and glaucoma videos categories are all well done. the ketamine videos are informative and well presented. the hemorrhages video provides some of the most clearly articulated, precise explanations of a varix that i've ever heard. the sites mentioned are of higher quality and will bring you up to speed on the various tests and methods to examine the eye. also, it is designed for people who are not attending a residency and want to learn more on the topic. although the ophthalmology textbooks will teach you most of this information, they are confusing and very hard to read. this site also helps if you're a resident getting ready for an exam. there are sections on each okap that teaches you what test to prepare for, what to expect in the exam, and some tips on how to deal with the anxiety associated with exams. it will help you learn how to approach questions, understand test formats, and how to deal with particular problems that you might face. nowadays, this is one of the most powerful web tool for learning and teaching. it is a wonderful site for ophthalmologists because it provides practically everything you need for their education. we are happy to recommend this website to all ophthalmologists. 5ec8ef588b
